

All That You're Missing

Copyright © by Ali Matthews (SOCAN) 2000

This is my attempt to honour the empty spaces in our lives.

*She steps off the train just like hundreds of mornings before
Same old job, same old thing – life goes on as if there's nothing more
She can't help but wonder what everything means
She fights back the hunger, but once in a while she dreams of...*

*All that she's missing – all that she needs
All she's been wishing
Even something so small would be better than
All that she's missing – all that she needs
All she's been wishing – all she could be*

*Some things are easy and some things you just gotta learn
You want to believe it – that someday the tide's gonna turn
It's burning like fire inside your mind
You keep reaching higher with a hope that you maybe will find...*

*All that you're missing – all that you need
All you've been wishing
Even something so small would be better than
All that you're missing – all that you need
All you've been wishing – all you could be*

*We move in slow motion
There are no guarantees
See a window that's open
And you could be free...to find*

*All that you're missing – all that you need
All you've been wishing
Oh God, hear our call – give us faith to find
All that we're missing – all that we need
All we've been wishing – all we could be*